The African Health OER Network provides a platform for African health academics to freely access and share educational materials as well as to debate key issues around the future of health education for healthcare workers in Africa. Open educational resources (OER) are learning materials that are freely available for use, adaptation, and redistribution. With your assistance, we aim to share and circulate health-related educational materials by building links to existing resources (e.g., programmes, modules, courses) which authors have shared under a Creative Commons licence.

The Network is the exciting outcome of a one-year endeavour to develop a sustainable and scalable OER programme to support health education, particularly in that of developing countries. It has been made possible through collaboration among the University of Michigan (U-M), OER Africa, Kwame Nkrumah University of Science and Technology (KNUST), the University of Ghana (UG), the University of Cape Town (UCT), and the University of the Western Cape (UWC).

The Health OER Network seeks to:

enable participants to create, adapt, and share health education resources to augment limited human and other resources in the health sector and advance overall health provision in Africa and beyond.

The Network will facilitate the process of sharing resources by connecting those who have a need for Health OER content with those in possession of it - without paying licensing fees or royalties.

Will you please show your dedication in helping to improve the provision of African health education by joining us on the African Health OER Network - <http://www.oerafrica.org/healthoer>

Please begin by signing the declaration, which indicates a commitment and support to open education and the African Health OER Network.

We are looking for ways to expand our OER collection and thus also invite you to review the available resources and provide your feedback, suggest ways you can contribute, or to request assistance. Contact Sarah Hoosen: healthoer@oerafrica.org for further information, or if you would like to suggest other people you would like us to add to our mailing list.
